THIRTY YEARS OF DE-DOODLING

IF ANYONE MAKES CLAIMS to having an unusual job, you might tell them about the one held for thirty years by John McElroy of New York. He's the fellow who "shaves" off beards and mustaches that are scrawled on advertising posters by doodlemaniacs. Equipped with an enormous eraser, John makes his way about the city restoring beauty to thousands of models who smile out at passersby from the posters. (International)

Governor Herbert

Ohioans this week must learn to use a new phrase that soon will become common-Governor Herbert.

It gives most residents of the state genuine pleasure to wish the incoming governor well. Most Ohioans honestly feel that way about it. They believe sale at $1.00 a gallon Thomas J. Herbert is going to be a good governor.

Governor Herbert begins his administration under favorable omens. He has a General Assembly manned with overwhelming working majorities of his own party. He has to an unusual extent for a first-term governor the confidence of his fellow Ohioans. He is one of many men coming into political prominence as circumstances shift and ebb. Ohio is in good financial condition. There are infinite opportunities for a new governor to prove his capabilities as an administrator the Somme. and as a symbol of the state's loyalties, energies and

It is going to be easy to get attached to Governor Herbert, both as a new phrase and as a new personality in public administration.

Who Keeps Sports Clean?

The tardy efforts of the National Football League to keep gamblers at arm's length are taking the somewhat curious form of appeals for federal, state and local laws making bribery of athletes a crime.

Before this is done, or at least while it's being done -if federal, state and local authorities decide to do it -professional football players and all other organizations of professional athletes should prove they are still able to do their own housecleaning.

How could a known gambler associate over a long period of time with two highly-publicized members of garden rd., has been announced. a professional football team without bringing on themselves a reprimand from their employer? Hapes and Filchock, the two New York Giants players who were approached by Alvin J. Paris with an offer of bribery, had accepted the gambler's hospitality on many occasions. Paris had access to the Giants camp. He knew other members of the squad. Yet, Hapes and Filchock never were warned to look for better associates. The public has learned these things. It won't be impressed with frantic demands for a law to punish bribers until it is convinced that the bribees want to clean their own house.

'Biggest Tree' On OWU Campus Dying

DELAWARE, O.-Ohio Wesleyan University stands to lose one of its landmarks, a huge cottonwood tree believed to be the largest tree in the state. The tree has "heart trouble" (eating away of the heart wood), according to Dr. Claude E. O'Neal, professor of botany at Ohio Wesleyan, who still hopes to save the historic tree which stood just below the Delaware Mansion House when it became Ohio Wesleyan in 1842 and just across the "run" from the birthplace of President Rutherford B. Hayes in 1822. The tree has a circumference of 171/2 feet at eye level. It's really big, as these three Ohio Wesleyan coeds indicate. The girls are: Christine Dorrance, Youngstown, O.: Florence Martineau, East Cleveland, O., and Marjorie Peek, Cleveland Heights. O.
